Head of structured credit at Napier Park Global Capital, Serhan Secmen, will be spending 21 November sleeping out. He's not being evicted – rather he's volunteering to raise money in support of homeless children.

Secmen is joining the 'sleep out' campaign in Newark, where it is organised by homelessness charity Covenant House. He is part of a Napier Park team known as the pirate blues brothers, in an initiative led by managing partner Jim O'Brien. The team goal is to raise $40,000.

Secmen says: "Together, we can make a change in a young person's life and earn them back into society."

Please visit sleepout.org and search for the pirate blues brothers to donate.
